Sales of the Past Few Days Show an Increase.

CHANCE TO CELEBRATE.

A Business-Like Meeting of the Exchange The Chamberlin Enterprise-The Sales of Yesterday-Notes.

Realty is steady, and prices remain firm. The last few days have seen quite an enouraging business done, and the total transfers for the present week will exceed those of any previous six days for many months past. Dealers have just about given up the idea of a fall boom, and are now banking on what the spring has in the progress and present status of our city and store for them. It is hardly in the nature of things that they will be again disapcointed. A few days more, may be a few ours, may see the building beem checked by the snowa of winter. The builders who are wise in their day andgeneration are making arrangements to keep stone cutters at work during the entire winter, Those who follow out this idea will be well-pre-pared next spring, and the dirst few months will see rapid progress made.

Will Celebrate the Event.

Members of the chamber of commerce are commencing to talk up the idea of a grand celebration and general good time on Fon an all wool dress go to John C. Cutter & the occasion of the opening of the new commerce, No. 36 Main street. While Falso & Co., received yesterday:

Miccommun. & Co., yesterday received silver and lead ores to the value of $6,330.

Charles Falso & Co., received yesterday:
Co., $14,02; fine bars, $16,883.

The building is a credit to the chamber, the architect and the west, and its formal opening should be uttingly celebrated.

The real estate exchange held its regular weekly meeting vesterday morning. The attendance was somewhat larger than usual and the future welfare and pecuniary matters were discussed at length, Among other matters that came up was the suggestion, made at a former meeting, that the business men in all lines of trade be invited to associate themselves with the real estate exchange as honorary members. In order to carry out the pian, Mr. Conkilin moved that article III, section 2, of the constitution be amended by adding the following clause: "That business men of Salt Lake city may, upon election and yayment of initiation fee become honorary members of the real extate exchange. They shall now no tiation fee become honorary members of the real estate exchange. They shall pay no dues, nor shall they hold office or be entitled to any of the regular privileges of the exchange meetings. The amendment will be considered at the next weekly meeting. There are a number of business men in the city who have expressed their willingness to become members of the exchange and was the resolutions and the city who have expressed in the considered and the city who have expressed their willingness.

and some gold. When the news of the find had gone abroad a number of prospectors hurried to the scene, and soon the foothills were being thoroughly prospected. Some work is already being done, and many claims have been staked out. There is considerable talk of establishing a new camp at or near the mouth of Pinyon canon, and the indications are favorable for a good strike.

The Capitol Grounds.

The capitel grounds commission held a meeting yesterday and determined to continue pushing the work of beautifying the grounds. A large number of trees have been planted and when completed it will be a beautiful piece of landscape gardening. The main avenue leading northward, has rows of Linden and maple trees on either side along the first half of its course, while the remaining half is lined with sycamore and maple. Scattered along the front part the grounds are evergreens and shrubbery which will add much to the effect. Workmen will begin laying the water pipes from the reservoirs to the grounds to-morrow. Nearly thirty men are employed and the work will be completed as soon as possible. Work on the pipe-laying will be begun at the reservoir.

After eight years' absence, Keenelovingly known the country over as "Tom" ence last evening, and was greeted by a large and a cult red gathering. He chose for his re-entry the character in which ROAD SUPERVISOR'S REPORTS. has long since accepted Barrett as the Salt Lake, if not the public everywhereforemost delineator. Booth, too, had

Keene had two notable recollections to con tend with in playing before last night's audience. Previous to Sheridan's death, had the task of classifying the five great actors of the country in the order of their merit with the role in which each county court was not a brilliant one, but considerable business was transacted. The gistis given below:

The road supervisor of district No. 18 Was authorized to obtain powder for biasting and picks to be used in his district.

The claim of John Johnson for the care of an indigent was disallowed.

Messrs. Howe, Cahoon and Miller were appointed to act on the supervisor's reports, which are to be made on December 15.

The claims of the selectmen and probate with the role in which each one excelled—been entrusted to us, we would have named them thus; Booth, as Hamlet: Barrett, as Richelieu; Keene, as Richard III; Sheridan, as Louis XI and Warde as Virginius. In those characters each actor was on his own ground, and we believe could bid defiance to all comers. How well Barrett maintains his hold on the willy cardinal of late years, we are not as the stands close behind him, ready to eatch the mantle as it falls from his shoulders. We still think his Richard will be pronounced the best thing in his repertoire, but in the best thing in his repertoire, but in many respects his Richelleu is superb. He has not the foxy craftiness either of Booth or Barrett his vigorous methods lends the foxiness at times almost a wolfishness, and his speech is sometimes "long drawn out" even for a character like Richelieu, but the great climaxes of the play—every schoolboy knows them—were thundered out with telling effect, and brought out which telling effect, and brought out thunders of appliause. The speech, "In the lexicon of youth which fate reserves for a bright manhood, there's no such word as fail," he made even a greater point than Booth or Barrett. In "the pen is mightier than the sword," and the curse scene he fell somewhat below them. Booth of the letter end, scene he fell somewhat below them. Booth got is greater effect out of the latter episode by bringing a file of soldiers on the stage with Baradas, and having them all drop to their knees when the power of tome was invoked. Mr. Keene was rewarded with a big curtain call after nearly every act, and after the final act—a great one—the audience still remained to call him out. The support was excellent. Mr. George Learock's Birasda being reminiscent of Louis James in its finish. Mr. Moore made a good be Mauprat, and Mr. Lawrence is one of the best Francois we have ever had. Mr. Scott's Huguet was intelligently acted. Mr. Ahrendt's Joseph lacked the unctions humor we have seen bestowed upon the

Mr. Abrendt's Joseph lacked the unctious humor we have seen bestowed upon the part and his style of boidness hardly suggested the monk. Miss Samnon's Julie De Mortemar—the audience had looked for Henrietta Voders but it seems she only appears in heavy roles now—was fairly done but not perfect. The memory of Marie Wainwright and Minna Gale were perhaps too recent. The staging and management generally were of a high order and indicated that a master hand was at the helm. To-aight, "Louis XI"—which Mr. Keene should do inimitably. It is one or frying's creat parts, but since Sheridan or Irving's great parts, but since Sheriday departed, we can think of no one on this side of the water who will better suit its peculiarities than Mr. Keene.

ondemning abutting lands, was an error. In connection with the proposition to widen the street, an offer was received from Mrs. Thompson to sell to the city a tract of land at the head of State street for $10,000. This proposition was accepted and the protest against the widening of the street was tabled on the same night, and it was this which gave rise to the supposition that the protest would not be considered. As a matter of fact, however, there is no fear of the proposition to widen the street being carried out, at least for some time, so the property owners above the Eagle gate may rest easy.

No statement was made in the council on Tuesday night as to the location of the 961 acres of land which the council agreed to purchase from the Union Pacific for $14,-341, or the purpose for which the lands were bought. It was learned yesterday that the land is situated in City Creek and Emigration casions, and it was bought in in order to protect the city's water right.

tract of land situated north of Ninth street waterworks, and prospects are that the benchers will soon get the relief prayed. Superintendent of Wateworks Ryan, while ot opposing the plan proposed by some members of the council to run a main from the Emigration pipe line reservoir on Thirteenth East street to the bench, thinks there is another plan which would be more Twenty-first Ward district is supplied by an independent main from City creek, and Mr. Ryan says that the wooden pipes leading from the casion are in very bad condition and will have to be repaired at once. In order to make them serviceable at all, it is necessary to wrap them with cloth, and he thinks the repairs should be delayed no leaves. When this work is done, he surpressure would be obtained to carry the water on to the bench, and it would improve the serviceall around.
